

Snowy conditions Saturday morning didn't keep volunteers from Day of Service

by Claudia Coffey

WHAS11.com

Posted on January 8, 2011 at 7:24 PM

Recommend 43

(WHAS11) Despite the snowy conditions this morning, that didn't stop more than 800 volunteers from rolling up their sleeves and participating in Mayor Greg Fischer's Day of Service; a day designated for residents to lend a hand to a local charity and help neighbors in need.

Inside the Volunteers of America on Shelby Street Saturday morning, it was bustling with activity. Dozens of volunteers answered Mayor Fisher's call to service.

Sacred heart student Adisen Stilger was one of many sprucing up a home for men recovering from addictions a she said it's a small way to give back Across town on the south side of Louisville, the mayor's wife Dr. Alex Gerassimides read to children living at a shelter. She joined more than 25 volunteers from the Greater Louisville Outstanding Women's Organization and the Younger Women's Club to help sort clothing donations, paint and hang new drapes,

At St. Joseph's Orphanage, Mayor Fischer joined in to help brighten up one of the classrooms. He joined volunteers from the Young President's Association.

A Day of Service is only expected to grow and for these volunteers, it gives them the

1/12/2011

Snowy conditions Saturday morning di...

desire to do even more.

Mayor Fischer said so far he has received wonderful feedback from volunteers and the charities he hopes will make this a regular event.

Add another comment